GENERAL CULTURE

Plant in any good garden soil in full sunlight if possible. From 3 to 5 inches is the proper depth to plant them and about the same distance apart. Keep ground loosened at all times to keep weeds down and to conserve moisture. In times of drouth, water deeply about once a week. Do not sprinkle. Well rotted manure, sheep manure or a good commercial potato fertilizer helps the growth of the plants. Blooms should be cut in the evening or early morning when the first bloom has opened. Bulbs may be planted from about May 1st to the latter part of June. Bulbs should be dug sometime during October, after the tops begin to turn brown, and before the ground freezes hard. The tops should be cut off an inch or so from the bulb, the bulbs dried a day or two in the open air, then stored in a dry cool place for the winter, where they will not be frozen. Sheep manure, 5c. per lb.
